

Social Chain 1

Generation 1.

A boss of a small company took his attractive secretary out for a long lunch on his birthday where they had some drinks. After the lunch the secretary asked her boss if he wanted to come up to her apartment for some more drinks which he readily agreed to. When the secretary left the room to 'slip into something more comfortable', she returned with his birthday cake as well as his family, friends and wife to find that the boss was waiting wearing nothing more than his socks.

Generation 2.

One day a boss took his attractive secretary out for a long lunch as it was his birthday and they had some drinks. After the meal the secretary asked her boss if he wanted to come up to her apartment for some more drinks, which he readily agreed to. When the secretary left to 'slip into something more comfortable' she returned with his birthday cake, friends, family and wife to find the boss waiting wearing nothing but his socks.

Generation 3.

One day a boss took his good-looking secretary out for lunch. During the meal they had quite a few drinks. After, the secretary asked if he wanted to come back to her apartment. When they arrived, the secretary left to 'put something more comfortable on'. When she came back, she arrived with a birthday cake, friends, family, and his wife, whilst the man was stood there with nothing but his socks on.