

Social Chain 2

Generation 1.

A boss from a small company invited his attractive secretary out for lunch for his birthday. Afterwards she invited him back to her apartment for a drink which he agreed to. She then said she was going to “slip into something more comfortable”, and when she returned, with a birthday cake, surrounded by the man’s friends, wife and children, they found him wearing nothing but his socks.

Generation 2.

A boss from a small company invited his attractive secretary out to lunch with him on the day of his birthday. After lunch, she invited him back to her apartment for a drink, which he agreed to. When they got there, she told him she was going to “slip into something more comfortable”, and left the room. When she returned with a birthday cake for him, along with his wife, friends and children, they found him in nothing but his socks.

Generation 3.

A boss was invited his attractive secretary out for lunch with him as it was his birthday. After the lunch she invited him back to her apartment for a drink, which he agreed to. When they got to the apartment she said she just wanted to “slip into something more comfortable”. She came back with a birthday cake, his wife, friends and children to find him in nothing but his socks.